Executive Director inquired about the status of the Agency's response to Komer for a list of twenty possible officers to serve in the pacification program. Carver said that the list was forwarded to Ambassador Porter, who presumably will comment after reviewing all submissions.

Executive Director initiated a discussion on the possibility of providing guidance to Agency personnel attending non-Agency schools on what kinds of projects they might suitably become engaged in. In the course of the discussion the DDCI opined that any information acquired by virtue of an individual's employment in CIA has the same status as an invention which he might develop at the Agency's behest. Personnel should therefore submit their theses for clearance before they are turned in and should indeed inform the Agency of the subject matter in order to obtain approval in advance. He added that the knowledge of Agency employment automatically identifies the Agency with such projects and that the finished papers are often disseminated by service schools to the JCS and the military departments. He felt that Agency approval for specific projects would have to be decided on an ad hoc basis. Executive Director proposes to ask the Director of Training to include on his checklist for briefing Agency officers prior to outside training a notation to alert these officers to the need for Agency clearance of their individual projects.
